SCIENTIFIC PROGRAM

This two-day symposium will call together researchers from Taiwan, Japan, and other countries working in interdisciplinary areas of molecular and biological sciences by using cutting-edge Raman spectroscopic techniques. The program consists of invited lectures (45 min) and invited talks (30 min), together with a poster mixer, in which active discussions will be anticipated in a relaxed atmosphere. Scientific topics presented and discussed will include:

- Linear/nonlinear Raman spectroscopy
- Biological applications of Raman spectroscopy and imaging
- Ultrafast time-resolved Raman spectroscopy

- Tip-enhanced Raman spectroscopy
- Theoretical developments

VENUE

Lecture Hall (Rm 210), Science Building II, NCTU.

SPEAKERS

The preliminary list of invited lecturers who have agreed to deliver talks includes:

Masahiro Ando (Waseda Univ, Japan)
Chi Chen (Academia Sinica, Taiwan)
Koichi Iwata (Gakushuin Univ, Japan)
Wolfgang Kiefer (Univ of Würzburg, Germany)
Elena Perevedentseva (NDHU, Taiwan)
Satyen Saha (Banaras Hindu Univ, India)
Henryk A. Witek (NCTU, Taiwan)

CALL FOR POSTERS

The Program Committee invites delegates to submit abstracts for consideration as poster presentations.

The Organizing Committee requires a one-page abstract for each oral or poster paper. Please prepare your abstract according to the template (MS Word file) and send it to tars.symposium2013@gmail.com as an email attachment no later than June 26. The abstract template will be available from the symposium website, which will be launched soon.

REGISTRATION

The registration fee is free. However, please fill in a registration form and email it to tars.symposium2013@gmail.com before June 26 so that we can tally the number of participants and prepare participant kits and meals.

ASSOCIATED EVENT

TARS Student Camp, July 5–6, 2013 (see attached flyer for details)
