SCIENTIFIC PROGRAM

This two-day symposium will call together researchers from Taiwan, Japan, and other countries working in interdisciplinary areas of molecular science by using state-of-the-art spectroscopic and imaging techniques.

The program consists of invited lectures (30 min) and invited talks (20 min), together with a poster mixer, in which active discussions will be anticipated in a relaxed atmosphere.

Scientific topics presented and discussed will include:

- Linear/nonlinear microscopy
- Advanced vibrational spectroscopy

- Biological applications of spectroscopy and imaging
- Ultrafast time-resolved spectroscopy
- Tip-enhanced Raman spectroscopy

VENUE

Lecture Hall (Rm 210), Science Building II, NCTU.

SPEAKERS

The preliminary list of invited lecturers who have agreed to deliver talks includes:

Sanford A. Asher (Univ of Pittsburgh, USA)

I-Chia Chen (NTHU, Taiwan)

Volker Deckert (Univ of Jena, Germany)

Michael W. George (University of Nottingham, UK)

Terry L. Gustafson (Ohio State University, USA)

Ian Liao (NCTU, Taiwan)

Tahei Tahara (RIKEN, Japan)

CALL FOR POSTERS

The Program Committee invites delegates to submit abstracts for consideration as poster presentations. A few papers may be selected as contributed oral presentations.

The Organizing Committee requires a one-page abstract for each oral or poster paper. Please prepare your abstract according to the template (MS Word file) and send it to asimolsci2012@gmail.com as an email attachment no later than June 24.

REGISTRATION

The registration fee is free. However, please fill in a registration form and email it to asimolsci2012@gmail.com before June 24 so that we can tally the number of participants and prepare participant kits and meals.
